Guidelines for the Ownership and Use of Parish Registers

1. The Rev'd Dr R Nicholson
2. The Rt Rev'd V Matthews

That this General Synod/Te Hīnota Whānui 2016:

1. Receives the Guidelines for the Ownership and Use of Parish Registers prepared by the Archives and History Committee/Te Puna o Neherā, as presented in the below schedule, and
2. Commends the Guidelines in their latest updated version, to be available online on the John Kinder Theological Library website Archives page, to all Dioceses/Hui Amorangi and Ministry Units as a resource to help achieve best practice managing Parish Registers.

Schedule:

Guidelines for the Ownership and Use of Parish Registers

Agreed to by the Archives and History Committee: Te Puna o Neherā, 11 March 2016

Ownership of Registers

All registers (baptism, marriage, burial, confirmation and other services) are the property of the Episcopal Unit, who will make suitable arrangements with a Ministry Unit for the storage, care and use of the Ministry Unit registers, according to the following Guidelines:

Location of Registers

1. The Episcopal Unit must arrange for registers to be removed to the agreed Episcopal unit archival repository (which might be the archives of the Episcopal Unit or of a contracted third party) when registers:
 - a. Have an oldest entry which reaches 50 years old, whether or not they have room for further entries.
 - b. Are completed and are not in current use for new entries (i.e. there being a successor register).
2. A Ministry Unit may copy information from a register prior to deposit if they wish to have access to the information within the Ministry Unit. A Ministry Unit may have access to the registers held by the Episcopal unit archival repository.
3. Arrangements with a third party for storage and access should be approved by the Archives and History Committee: Te Puna o Neherā, in consultation with the Episcopal Unit. Copyright and ownership remains with the Episcopal Unit.
4. A legally effective written agreement covering potential copyright, ownership, possession and use issues, must be completed before any deposit of registers with a third party takes place.

Information in Registers

5. The information contained in a register is restricted by both the Copyright Act and the Privacy Act.
6. The guidance of the Registrar-General Births, Deaths and Marriages, as to when registers can be accessed by the general public, must be followed, so that people or families who might still be alive can be protected. This allows access to
 - a. baptism records that are at least 100 years old
 - b. marriage records that are at least 80 years old
 - c. burial records that are at least 50 years old — or the deceased's date of birth was at least 80 years ago
 - d. confirmation records – no restrictions
 - e. service registers – no restrictions

(NB: Some pastoral discretion may be exercised over these restrictions by the respective Episcopal Unit.)
7. Under the Privacy Act, an individual has access to her or his own record, without time restrictions.
8. Custodians of Episcopal unit archival repositories may allow the verified descendant of an individual to have access to that individual's records within the restricted periods noted above.

Copyright issues

9. Copyright of the original material in registers is held by the Episcopal Unit, who should control the copying and dissemination of the information to any third party according to any policy or Guidelines agreed to by the Church.

(Note that with marriage registers, not all information will be copyright to the Church because some information will be copied from a government issued marriage licence).

10. Where an historical agreement is already in place, this should be reviewed in the light of the above Guidelines, and where possible a modified agreement made to better protect the interests of the Church in the registers.¹
11. A legally effective written agreement covering potential copyright, attribution and use issues must be completed before any external party is permitted to access and use (including copying, digitising, scanning, etc.) any registers.
12. Any new form of existing records (e.g. electronic or transcription) will be regarded under the Copyright Act as a literary work and have copyright of its own (but only to the extent it is original). If it is simply a copy of the existing record, then it is subject to the Church's copyright in that existing record. However, if the copy incorporates new original material then there will be mixed copyright. The Church's rights in the existing records should be preserved wherever possible.

Agreed

Synod/Hinota adjourned for afternoon tea at 3.00pm and resumed at 3.30pm. The Most Rev'd Philip Richardson in the Chair.

Notices

Members of General Synod Standing Committee to meet at 5.00pm.

Written answers to the question about Child Poverty/Affordable Housing are to be forwarded to the General Secretary and will be inserted into the proceedings.

We cannot report any programme on affordable housing.

However we have many social services that touch on and support the lives of children in poverty, directed naturally through their families:

- early childhood education,
- socialising and parenting skills,
- budget advice,
- growing through grief.

¹ It is noted that it may be difficult to challenge some historic agreements. Most historic agreements did not deal with copyright issues. All effort should be made to regularise these agreements.

We have is committed to work towards payment of not less than the Living Wage to all Diocesan employees and the Diocese encourages all Ministry Units (e.g. the Social Services Trust Board) to do likewise. We have over 500 employees in social services, many of them currently under the Living Wage.

Diocese of Wellington:

Child Poverty has been one of our 3 key diocesan foci for the last two years. Each Parish is asked to develop initiatives in these focus areas and report on them to the annual Diocesan Synod meetings. It has also been the subject of specific Synod motions.

Some of the initiatives in the area of reducing child poverty are:

Breakfast clubs, City Mission partnership with the Lux festival, parenting courses, connecting with local social service agencies, support for foodbanks (including recording contributions to such), child poverty forum with government representatives in conjunction with the Roman Catholic Church, Church represented at government level by the City Missioner and Mission Enabler, working with the Children's Commissioner.

We are not aware of any specific action on affordable housing, other than Naenae Parish building affordable housing on church property – these units especially for ex-prisoners, but are is aware that it is probably on the horizon of the above mentioned group working with the Children's Commissioner.

Anglican Family Care is the social services agency of the Diocese (in Otago) and works actively to relieve the effects of child poverty through programmes like Family Start. In 2015, the Family Start team worked with 333 babies and whanau, workers made over 10,000 home visits. Anglican Family Care has offices in South, Central, and North Otago.

In Invercargill, housing is cheaper than some places but child poverty still exists. Anglican Family Care there is working with housing problems and the secondary problems that occur when there are large numbers of low income families.
